This class of men, the scavengers and dirty work doers of the Republican party, the gentleman from Boone and Hendricks always excepted, approved of the President's emancipation proclamation and of every act of tyranny and usurpation by the Administration. These were the men who shouted traitor all the time against as good and as loyal men as there were in Indiana. These were the men who would assault hen-roosts at midnight but who would never risk their precious bodies in defense of their country's Con-50 stitution and flag."

Now, when Judge Niblack makes the statement that "ten citizens were executed because of the disappearance of an 75 old man who re appeared a day or two on afterwards," he asserts what is grossly false, either through malice or ignorance. The story of Alsman's return, got up by the butternuts, has been contradicted from this State upon the most reliable authority.
